The Making of the Modern World Program. The Making of the Modern World (MMW) is a general-education sequence designed to provide a broad, global overview of the past from the dawn of human history and early societies to the emergence of social, environmental, economic, and political challenges facing the world today, while also providing instruction in university-level research and writing. MMW supports our belief that, regardless of academic or professional area of specialization, all ERC graduates should have a basic understanding of the shared and remarkably diverse human experience that comprises our world, both past and present.

About the Lecture

"Utterance, Ritual, Expression: Why Singing Makes Us Human"

Before we spoke, we sang. The strange and unimaginable sounds that emerged from the throats of our ancestors led us to the path of language. All cultures sing, and for many, song is the way in which humans apprehend their own history. Throughout the modern world, singing is an essential component of sophisticated musical form and expression. Why do we sing? Why does singing effect us as it does? Professor Narucki's lecture will discuss how singing has driven - and been driven by - our need to communicate and to understand our human experience. She will demonstrate, through singing, the possibilities of the unique fusion of word, sound and meaning that is integral to Western Art Music.
